

Abby and Carson Use Transit to Visit Uncle Gus

Carson and Abby are excited today. They have never visited Uncle Gus before. They have never been on a ferry before either. Grandmother rushed in and asked if Abby and Carson were ready. "Yes," said Carson. "Are we going by car?" "Yes," said Grandmother. "A taxi will pick us up and take us to the ferry."

"Is the taxi transit?" asked Carson. "It can be," said Grandmother. "Transit is what gets two or more of us from here to there." Abby giggled and asked if her tricycle was transit. Grandmother laughed and smiled saying, "It is if I ride on it with you."

Uncle Ted told them of the really big boat called a ferry that will take them across the big river. "Is the ferry transit?" asked Carson. Uncle Ted drew a picture of a river and a ferry with many people on it. "See all of those people?" asked Uncle Ted. "They are all using the ferry as transit to get from here to there." He pointed to one side of the river and then to the other side.

Suddenly a horn sounded outside. "It's the ferry!" cried Abby. "No my little one, it is the taxi," answered Grandmother. "Is everyone ready?"

They all cheered and buttoned their coats for the trip ahead.
